

Religion and Politics

Many issues today on various levels involve politics and religion. Many believe that if a subject is addressed in the pulpit that has political implication, one is necessarily mixing politics and religion. There are presently two powerful movements in America: The Politically Correct and Religious Right Movements.

Religion and Politics

Slavery.

A. Col. 3: 22, 23, 4: 1, I Cor. 7: 20-24.

Religion and Politics

Warfare.

A. Jas. 4: 1, 2, 2 Tim. 2: 4,
I Tim. 5: 8.

Religion and Politics

Church/State.

A. Rom. 13: 1-7.

Religion and Politics

Role of Women.

A. Eph. 5: 22, 23, I Pet. 3: 3-6, Tit. 2: 4, 5.

Religion and Politics

The matter of children.

A. Eph. 6: 1, 2, 4, Prov. 29:
15.

Religion and Politics

Abortion.

A. Luke 1: 41, Ex. 21: 22-25.

Religion and Politics

Gay marriage.

A. Gen. 2: 18, 21-25, Rom.
1: 24-27.

Religion and Politics

War on drugs.

A. Prov. 23: 31.

Religion and Politics

Lottery.

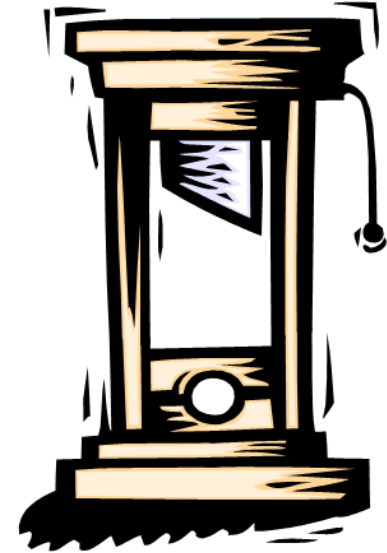

A. Eph. 4: 28.

Religion and Politics

Death penalty.

A. Rom. 13: 2-4, Gen. 9: 6.

Religion and Politics

Euthanasia.

A. Rom. 13: 9.

Religion and Politics

New World Order.

A. I Tim. 2: 1, 2.

Religion and Politics

Conclusion: Just to mention political matters that are relevant to the cause of Christ is not necessarily “preaching politics” (Matt. 2). Examples of a religious political agenda would be cases of the “Religious Right.” When the gospel is applicably preached, the home, school, the work place, and government will often be referenced.